Jan: You want another cheeseburger? You shouldn't drink so much Coke. It rots your teeth. I ain't kiddin'. Somebody told me about this scientist once who knocked out one of his teeth and dropped it in this glass of Coke, and after a week, the teeth rotted away until there was nothing left.

Eugene: Miss Lynch, fellow graduates, honored guests, and others. Looking over these familiar faces really takes me back to those wonderful bygone days. Days of working and playing together, days of cheering together for our athletic teams- Yay Ringtails!- and days of working together when examination time rolled around. Perhaps some of those familiar faces of yesteryear are absent this evening, and I'm sure they'd want us to know that they're fully present and accounted for in spirit, just the way we always remember them.
